death of Frank A. McGill, of Washing-ton City, formerly of Los Angeles, once a member of the Tixes staff, and our correspondent at the result of my effort of the Times staff, and the part of the progestative correspondent at the result of a last winter. He died in his last the result of a last the part of the progestation of the progestati espable legislative correspondent at Sacramento last winter. He died in his thirty-fifth year, at 105 East Capitol street, Washington, on the 26th of September, after a long and wasting illness, which he bore with great fortitude, being buoyed up until nearly the end with the hope of recovery. Mr. McGill was an accomplished printer and a journalist of wide experience and recognized ability. He had held responsible positions on the prease of Washington City, and also under the Government; but a couple of years since his failing health admonished him to seek a more genial clime, and he came west a sfar as New Mexico, and subsequently to Loa Angeles, which he reached about twelve months ago. He left here on his return to Washington on the 2dd last Jane. He was a fellow of many fine qualities of heart and mind, who had hosts of friends wherever he lived, and they will learn with sincers sorrow of his death. Peaceful be his final resit.
